WHAT IS UNDERGRADUATE STUDY?
Undergraduate study in the US means getting a bachelor’s degree. A bachelor’s degree is typically a four- or five-year program. It can be a Bachelor of Arts (B.A.), a Bachelor of Science (B.S.) or a Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.). To receive a bachelor’s degree, students must:
• Complete a minimum 180 credit hours total.
• With an average course load of 15 units each term, a student can complete a bachelor’s degree in four years of full-time study.
• Complete a sequence of courses within a major field of study, called major requirements (also known as upper division).
• Complete a sequence of courses outside your major field of study, called general education requirements, lower division or Baccalaureate Core at Oregon State.

BACCALAUREATE CORE
A degree from a US university doesn’t just prepare you for a career – it prepares you for life. That means developing a well-rounded set of critical thinking, communication and problem-solving skills – the purpose of Oregon State University’s Baccalaureate Core. Regardless of your major, you’ll take Baccalaureate Core classes in science, arts and humanities – and you’ll have a wide variety to choose from. You’ll also find those skills useful as you go deeper into your major.

INTERNSHIPS AND WORK
Corvallis, the home of OSU, has earned distinction due to the many opportunities for work and internships available in the areas around the university. Intel, Hewlett-Packard, Nike and Columbia Sportswear have operations here and work closely with OSU to offer internships and hire recent graduates. For more information, see pages 64-65.

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL
At Oregon State, majors in the College of Business, College of Engineering and College of Forestry follow a professional school model. Students enter their respective colleges as pre-professionals and are accepted into the professional major once they have completed their pre-professional course work. Each student must meet the minimum application requirements and be admitted into the professional school. All upper-division course work is completed while in the professional school during the junior and senior years.

Admission to the professional school is competitive. Meeting the minimum requirements is the first step toward being accepted, but does not guarantee admittance into the program.

Undergraduate Pathway Programs

What is the Undergraduate Pathway Program?
Into Oregon State University’s Undergraduate Pathway programs combine intensive English language study, academic skills development and academic course work. The carefully constructed programs are designed to move students successfully through the first one or two terms, or first year, of an undergraduate degree program. Pathway programs do not extend the overall length of an undergraduate degree program. In fact, Pathway programs guarantee places in required courses, which may prevent extension of program length.

Who is the Program For?
The Pathway program is designed for students who want extra support and preparation for OSU’s rigorous degree programs. The program is ideal for students who:
- Want to earn a bachelor’s degree in the US
- Desire additional academic, language and cultural support to excel at a US university
- May need to improve English language skills
- May have a lower GPA than required for direct admission to degree programs

What are the Benefits?
- Guaranteed progression to an OSU undergraduate program (upon successful completion of a Pathway program)
- Courses with domestic and international students
- Access to all OSU campus facilities and events
- Individual supplemental tutoring for any subject
- Highly-trained, experienced instructors
- Academic advising throughout the program
- Use of a state-of-the-art Learning Center
- Exceptional on-campus housing experience (all students with Undergraduate Pathway in their study plan are required to live on campus during their first three terms)

“Most of my classes are not solely based on theory but also on practice. This helps me a lot with the integration of knowledge and the professors who’ve taught me so far have been really down to earth.”

EARTH SYSTEMS AT OSU

Our oceans, atmosphere and land ecosystems, which support life on our planet, are being altered on an unprecedented scale. Innovative approaches are required to manage these natural resources. The Division of Earth Systems Sciences at OSU is a world-recognized leader in the study of the interactions of physical, chemical, biological, economic and social processes. We prepare our students for a wide range of careers in industry, government and education. Together, our students are helping to establish a path to successful management of the planet, ensuring new opportunities for future generations.

Composed of the College of Agricultural Sciences, the College of Earth, Ocean, and Atmospheric Sciences and the College of Forestry, the Division of Earth Systems Sciences offers numerous degree options, including the following available through INTO OSU Pathway programs.

GLOBAL SUSTAINABILITY

This Pathway leads to a variety of majors in Agricultural Sciences, Natural Resources and Renewable Materials.

Agricultural Sciences

Students will learn to create safe, healthy food; solutions to environmental issues; potential cancer therapies and clean waterways. As one of the foundations of society, studying agricultural sciences offers incredible opportunities.

Renewable Materials

This major is ideal for students who are interested in helping the world replace oil-based and non-renewable materials with renewable alternatives. Students will learn how to efficiently produce, market and use diverse renewable materials such as wood, bamboo, straw and more.

Natural Resources

This program offers a broad-based interdisciplinary approach to the study of natural resources, such as bamboo and wave energy. Students will learn to understand a range of natural resources issues, will work with experts in a variety of fields and will specialize in specific aspects of natural resources based on personal interests.

NEW: Global Sustainability

This Pathway leads to the second year of natural resources and renewable materials majors and can lead to agricultural sciences with some additional credits. Potential careers include biomaterials engineering, bio-security and forest ecosystem management.

WHY STUDY IN OREGON?

There is no better place than Oregon to study earth sciences: about half of the state is covered in forests and we’re a major agricultural center. Two large mountain ranges — one just outside of Corvallis and another that runs through the center of Oregon — provide a vast diversity in landscapes and the university owns nearly 5,700 hectares of forests near campus.

With about 50% of Oregon covered in forest, there’s no better place to study.

#7 IN THE WORLD

OSU Forestry and Agricultural Sciences programs are ranked #7 in the world according to QS World Rankings.

INTO OSU Center and are for Pathway students only.
FORESTRY
This Pathway program leads to a major in Forestry.

Forestry
Forestry is the science of developing, caring for and managing forests, as well as water, soil, wildlife, insects and all other natural resources within a forest ecosystem.

RELATED FIELDS OF STUDY
In addition to these Pathway programs, other fields of study within the Division of Earth Systems Sciences are available through INTO OSU Pathway programs:

Forest Engineering
Prepares students for a range of careers that combine forestry and engineering. The INTO OSU Pathway in Engineering can lead to this major.

Earth Sciences
The program is compelling for students with broad interests in the Earth, Earth systems and their interaction with society. Available with options in Geography, Geology and Ocean Science. The INTO OSU Pathway in Science can lead to this major.

Environmental Sciences
This major provides a curriculum based on complex environmental issues such as global warming, conservation, sustainability and pollution. The INTO OSU Pathway in Science can lead to this major.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS
OSU offers 129 different graduate degree programs in fields such as engineering, forestry, agriculture, physical and life sciences, health-related studies, humanities, social sciences, family and consumer sciences, business and education.

MASTER’S PROGRAMS IN THE US
The master’s degree usually takes one to three years of full-time study. There are two main types of master’s degree programs: professional master’s degrees and research master’s degrees.

Professional master’s degrees provide a specific set of skills needed to practice a particular profession and generally lead directly to employment. The MBA (Master of Business Administration) and MEng (Master of Engineering) are two examples.

Research master’s degrees (M.A. or M.S.) are generally part of the progression to a Ph.D. program. They provide experience in research and scholarship and may involve writing a thesis or taking a comprehensive examination.

PH.D. PROGRAMS
Ph.D. programs train research scholars in a particular field and typically require both course work and a major research project. It usually takes three to five years of full-time study to earn a Ph.D. Some doctoral programs include a master’s degree program, with students beginning directly after they complete their bachelor’s degree.

The first two years of a Ph.D. program involve classes and seminars to give students a comprehensive knowledge of an academic field. Students then take written and/or oral examinations to test their knowledge. Successful completion of the exams and approval of a research project leads to “candidacy.”

The research project involves original research and, depending on the field, should take one to three years to complete. Faculty members guide and evaluate the project, but the student carries out the research independently.

The Linus Pauling Institute
The Institute continues distinguished alumnus Linus Pauling’s legacy with research focused on cardiovascular and metabolic diseases, cancer, aging, immune function and neurodegenerative diseases.

The Radiation Center
This unique facility supports research, development and service programs involving nuclear science and engineering, radiation protection and related disciplines.

Hatfield Marine Science Center
Located on the Oregon coast in Newport, the HMSC is a center for marine and coastal research and outreach programs.
“What do I love about OSU? I love the Valley Library and the huge trees on campus; they’re so old and make the campus so pretty.”

Siqi Chen, China

What is the Graduate Pathway Program?

The Graduate Pathway program is a pre-master’s program that provides international students a direct path to various graduate degrees at the university. The program gives students the academic foundation, essential language skills and GMAT/GRE test preparation to successfully move on to the master’s or doctoral degree.

Who is the program for?

The Graduate Pathway program is designed for international students who:
- Require additional preparation to be admitted directly to the Graduate School
- Fall short of meeting the minimum GPA or test score requirements
- Need further English development
- Need to improve study skills for success in their chosen field of study

What classes will Graduate Pathway students take?

The academic courses included in the Graduate Pathway programs are carefully chosen to ensure success in graduate-level studies. Students will be advised on which modules to follow during their academic orientation at the INTO OSU Center. For sample curricula, please refer to pages 35-41.

- Business Analytics
- Clean Technology/Commercialization
- Global Operations
- Marketing
- Research Thesis

MATH PLACEMENT FOR MBA PATHWAY STUDENTS
All Graduate Pathway MBA students are required to take the OSU Math Placement Test during orientation week. This test will place you in the most suitable math class. If you place at a lower level than MTH 245, you may require additional terms of study.

In order to prepare you for the MBA Graduate Pathway, you will have the opportunity to take the free, online OSU Math Placement Test in your home country. You can take the test in the 6-month period before your Graduate MBA Pathway begins. After taking the test, you will have access to free, online math study materials for a period of 6 months. These materials are specifically designed to help you increase your math skills.

If you are completing the INTO OSU Academic English program prior to the MBA Pathway, you will have the opportunity to take the OSU Math Placement Test in the INTO OSU Center. If necessary, you will then be able to take a math course that will help you to reach the required math level by the time you start the MBA Pathway.
MBA

STUDY ABROAD WITH ENGLISH

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION
Study Abroad with English is a long-term program that combines Academic English language study with the chance to experience undergraduate courses at OSU. This unique program allows students to earn college credits in their field of interest without having to enroll in a long-term degree program. The length of the program will vary depending on a student’s needs. The program can be customized for different levels of English and for specific academic interests.

With prior approval from a student’s home university, the academic courses studied at OSU can be used to gain credits toward an undergraduate degree in his or her home country. Earned credits may also be applied to a degree program with admission to OSU. The program consists of two main parts.

PART 1
Part 1 includes full-time intensive study in the Academic English program to the level required for taking credit courses at OSU. This intensive program starts at four different entry points during the year, in fall, winter, spring and summer.

PART 2
Students are able to select from OSU undergraduate courses and study alongside domestic and international students while continuing to take Academic English classes as well.

In fact, OSU graduates were ranked top 25 in employability after graduation in the “Cream of the Crop” by the Wall Street Journal in 2012. Plus, graduates of OSU earn a median income that is 50% higher than that of college graduates nationwide.

F-1 international students in language training programs (including Pathway programs) are not eligible for employment or practical training.

INTERNSHIPS
Interning as part of your degree program is a key part of becoming a successful graduate. Nine out of 10 employers said they look for students who have one or two internships before graduation.

MULTIPLE ENGINEERING COOPERATIVE PROGRAM
The Multiple Engineering Cooperative Program (MECOP) is an innovative internship program, which places students in paid engineering- and business-oriented internships with some of the world’s top companies, including Boeing, Intel and Nike. Two six-month internships mean students develop real-world skills to make the most of their education. For more information about MECOP, please visit: www.mecopinc.org

AUSTIN ENTREPRENEURSHIP PROGRAM
The Austin Entrepreneurship Program (AEP) is a unique living-learning environment for undergraduates offering entrepreneurship courses, hands-on experience, and the opportunity to explore business ideas. The program focuses on four key initiatives:
- Entrepreneurship and Innovation
- Social Entrepreneurship and Social Initiatives
- Sustainability
- Professional Development
The Austin Entrepreneurship Program students live and interact with other AEP students in Weatherford Hall who come from colleges and departments all across the OSU campus, ranging from business and engineering to fashion design, horticulture, arts and sciences. GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIPS
Graduate students may be offered a teaching or research assistantship on campus. The assistantships are employment-based appointments where students, in exchange for their teaching or research service, receive a monthly salary, tuition remission and an institutional contribution toward the health insurance program available only to graduate assistants. Teaching and research assistantships are offered on a competitive basis and are generally administered by the academic departments.

WORKING AFTER GRADUATION
OSU graduates are consistently in demand from employers such as Boeing, HP, Intel, NVIDIA, Hitachi, Monsanto, Garmin, CH2M HILL, Google and others.

- Intel has about 800 Oregon State alumni on staff
- 60% of Garmin’s software engineers graduated from OSU’s College of Engineering
- A recent computer science graduate started an entry-level position at $92,000 per year

Depending on the visa, students may be eligible for optional practical training or academic training programs. These programs generally provide work authorization for one year after graduation from a degree program. International Student Advising and Services offer workshops to help students understand the legal aspects of working in the United States.

“\textit{I will be working as a transportation engineer after I graduate this June. I received this job opening through the OSU College of Engineering outreach coordinator. That person helps companies find students, and sends us job openings at companies.}”
